Care for your heart

According to the American Heart Association, cardiovascular diseases (CVDs) have become a major reason for deaths across India. It happens because of the prevalence of risk factors for CVDs in the country.

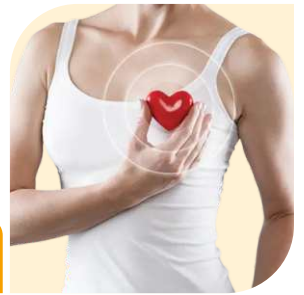

CAD disease can happen to anyone, but the speed varies as to how quickly it develops from one human being to another. It can start even when you are young and it starts showing fat streaks before your teen years. When the plaque begins developing in the heart's coronary arteries, your body fights against the process. It happens because white blood cells attack cholesterol. But the attack causes inflammation; thus, triggering other cells to form a soft cap above the plaque. The accumulation of thin caps can break open, and blood cell fragments cause a clot to form. It narrows both right coronary artery branches and left coronary artery branches. At times, the clot can break on its own, while at other times, it can deprive the heart of getting oxygen, leading to an attack. It is how coronary atherosclerosis happens, and if it happens, you must look for proper treatment. There are a number of supplements, many derived from plants, that could help treat atherosclerosis.
